

ROXANNE NASRATY

SOFTWARE DEVELOPER

ABOUT ME

I've traveled to Japan to teach English and partnered with insurance brokers to make sure employees could elect health care online. These experiences lead me to discover that I wanted to both interact with a wide range of people and get hands on involvement in making and maintaining the software I use. This lead me to enroll in a full-stack software development bootcamp at Nashville Software School.

I feel inspired by the constant challenge of keeping up with changing code norms, learning new languages, and knowing that you can always be better than you were the day before.
